MACEO KILLED

While Leading His Troops in a Dash Against the Spaniards.

THE GREAT CUBAN GENERAL

WHOSE DEATH HAS BEEN ATTRIBUTED TO GARCIA AND ALSO DENIED ENTIRELY IS NOW REPORTED KILLED IN ACTION BY BEING SHOT THROUGH THE HEAD.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

HAVANA, July 17.—Private advices give an entirely different account of the death of Jose Maceo than the version heretofore given out. According to this story after the Insurgent Colonel Cartagena had been killed in the engagement in Gato Hills, Maceo with his staff and escort put himself at the head of the forces and led a dash by which he hoped to surprise the Spaniards.

On the smaller questions of the Venezuelan matter regarding which the United States assumed an attitude friendly to protection, the difficulties arose out of the fact that Venezuela's claim placed two-thirds of the colony of British Guiana subject to arbitration.

The first thing necessary was to ascertain the real facts of the controversy from Venezuela's history.

He had however made a serious miscalculation and found himself confronted by a strong force in a superior position. Seeing his error and hoping to escape Maceo shouted to his followers, "Back, let us retreat; they are too many for us."

As he uttered the last word a rifle ball struck him in the back of the neck, passed through his head and emerged between his eyes. The volley that killed Jose Maceo also slew his friend Dr. Echavarria and several members of his staff.

RIOTING IN MELROSE.

Trouble Between Italian Laborers and a Contractor Results in a Riot.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

MELROSE, Mass., July 17.—Trouble which has been brewing for some time between Contractor Eveline who is constructing a sewer here and his Italian employees culminated in a riot early this morning, in which Eveline was attacked by several Italians. Injuries of considerable seriousness were inflicted upon him.

The arrival of citizens and police prevented a greater disturbance. The trouble, which was stirred up originally by a few turbulent members of Eveline's force, was augmented by the alleged failure of the contractor to pay the men the full amount of wages due them.

Eveline claims that the men received the full amount due them except such part as he was entitled to retain under the law. The selectmen have advised Eveline to abandon the work but he refuses, stating he will go on and demand police protection.

MISUSE OF A STATE FLAG.

To Boom Bryan. Sent Out of His State to Georgia.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

LINCOLN, Neb., July 17.—The city is crowded with people prepared to welcome Wm. J. Bryan home. Every residence building in the capital city is gaily decorated in honor of the occasion. Probably 10,000 visitors are here. Every train is bringing enormous crowds. The number of visitors is expected to reach 25,000 before candidate Bryan arrives.

Republicans are indignant at the action of Adjutant General Barry. He received a telegram from the Adjutant General of Georgia asking for the use of Nebraska's flag to be used at ratification nomination of Bryan by Atlanta residents. Barry at once sent the flag. This is the first time on record that the state flag has been forwarded to an outside state to be utilized in a partisan ratification meeting.

The Morning Bulletin From the Physicians Reports Him Better.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

NEW YORK, July 17.—Cornelius Vanderbilt passed a restful night and this morning is said to be somewhat improved in condition. At 9:30 Drs. Janeway, McLane, Draper and Delafield issued a bulletin saying "Mr. Vanderbilt passed a quiet night, is much refreshed by sleep and is better than yesterday morning."

VENEZUELA

Lord Salisbury Reports that Plans for the Amicable Settlement of

THE BOUNDARY QUESTION

ARE WORKING SATISFACTORILY BETWEEN THE BRITISH AND THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENTS. THINKS AMERICANS WANT HASTY DECISIONS. HIS ADDRESS FRIENDLY.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

LONDON, July 17.—The Marquis of Salisbury laid before the House of Lords to-day the papers on the subject of arbitration. His lordship said the negotiations between the United States and Great Britain were not yet complete but were advancing satisfactorily.

On the smaller questions of the Venezuelan matter regarding which the United States assumed an attitude friendly to protection, the difficulties arose out of the fact that Venezuela's claim placed two-thirds of the colony of British Guiana subject to arbitration.

The first thing necessary was to ascertain the real facts of the controversy from Venezuela's history.

When that had been fully ascertained by the commission in which both countries had confidence he felt that the diplomatic questions which would follow would not be difficult to adjust.

But even if they should be those difficulties would be overcome by arbitration. It had been impossible to move faster owing to the absence of full knowledge of the facts in the case. The labor involved had been enormous.

In regard to the general system of arbitration between the United States and Great Britain, Lord Salisbury said it would be difficult dealing with cases so large as to contain issues of vital character. After much discussion with the United States upon that point he thought the tendency of the United States was to desire a rapid and summary decision of questions.

The British government thought the principle of obligatory arbitration is attended with considerable hazard. In recent years the United States had availed a disposition to take up the causes of many South American republics, but his government had not quarreled with that disposition.

Great Britain, her lordship added, had taken a similar interest in disputes regarding the frontiers of Sweden, Holland, Belgium and Portugal.

WILLIAM E. RUSSELL.

Robinson, Greenhalge, Russell; the year has been for Massachusetts one of constant mourning for distinguished sons. Today the mourning is sadly deepened and a great state stands appalled and dumb before the strange passing into another and a higher sphere of one who so brilliantly, so courageously and so patriotically performed the honorable mission assigned to him and so faithfully fulfilled it even before the prime of this life had been entered.

Ex-Governor Russell had a peculiar hold upon the people of this commonwealth. This in a measure is illustrated by such tributes as we publish today from men of all shades of political belief. Tributes of the same character come naturally and spontaneously from all parts and circles of the state. This great popularity was extending all over the country and he was rapidly reaching the position where more than any man in the East with the exception of Reed he was likely in the near future to be called to stand for the votes of the people of the United States for the highest honor in their gift.

His brilliancy and his intellectual endowments had of course much to do with this early recognition of his merits. But the characteristics which made these merits conspicuous and won for him this unusual popularity and admiration were his fearlessness mingled with considerateness, his courage sweetened by an iron courtesy, his aggressive and ambitious political work graced always by the charm of a cultured gentleman; a patriot loyal to his friends, his party and to his convictions of what stood for the highest welfare of his country.

THE MEANING OF SIXTEEN TO ONE.

Fortunately this is to be truly a campaign of education, and as people who have heretofore paid but little attention to the study of the currency question become more familiar with it by free discussion and reading the more clearly apparent to them will be the disastrous character of the free coinage of silver fallacies.

This educational feature of the campaign is its brightest and most hopeful. The American people are急于 to grasp a point and to grasp it intelligently. Long before the end of the campaign the silver craze will have spent its fury upon them, and calm consideration will surely be leading them in the pathway marked out by cool, intelligent judgement.

The study of the currency question is almost universal in this country today. Just now many are asking for an explanation of 16 to 1. A very clear and excellent explanation of it is given by the New York Sun as follows:

"They (16 to 1) are figures of weight. By the Mint act of 1834, which, except as regards silver dollars, is still in force, every owner of gold bullion and of silver bullion was permitted to take it to the Mint in unlimited quantities and have it coined, free of expense, except for refining and for the alloy used, into silver dollars and gold eagles and fractions of an eagle, at the rate of sixteen times as many dollars for a given weight of gold as for an equal weight of silver. That is to say, while 23.22 grains of pure gold went to the dollar in gold, 381 grains of pure silver were required for a silver dollar. With the alloy added it took 25.8 grains of standard gold for the dollar, and 424 grains of standard silver for the silver dollar. The provision of this law, as to silver, was repealed in 1873, and this provision the states now demand to have reenacted.

"As a matter of fact, an ounce of silver was worth in the markets of the world, from 1821 to 1873, more than one-sixteenth of an ounce of gold, the value in Europe being at the rate of 15 to 1. Consequently our silver coin was exported as fast as it was coined, gold became the only coin in circulation, and in 1853 small change had become so scarce that Congress authorized silver halves and quarters of a dollar to be coined, on Government account exclusively, of less weight than the proportionate parts of a full dollar, so that two halves and four quarters contained only 584 grains of standard silver, instead of 1120 grains.

"At the present moment, the market value of silver bullion, relatively to that of gold bullion, is about 81 to 1. That is to say one ounce of gold is ex-

One support holds one end of two panels, and the projecting ends lapping by each other in the supports. If there is danger of the fence being blown over by high winds, it may be supported by driving a piece of board into the ground by the side of the supports, at the foot of each, and driving a nail through the support; or a flat stake may be driven into the ground over the top of the support, in a standing direction. The former will be most secure, however. In setting up the fence, care should be taken that the fence may settle without resting on the bottom board; otherwise it will tip to one side. The bottom board may be omitted entirely, if desired, however, and the fence built on the full height of lath. But if one is located where there is great danger of high winds, he may still have a secure fence built with stationary posts and movable panels as a team can work around posts without great inconvenience. Where round posts are used, they may be mortised, as shown in Fig. 2, using the same style of panels as described. The mortises are cut so that the projecting end of the panels will rest in the bottom of each when the fence is put up. Cleats may be nailed on each side of the post at the bottom to support the bottom board.

If flat, sawed posts are used, which are too narrow at the top to admit of mortises, hooks may be nailed on the
